Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas death, in its remorseless grasp, has claimed our dearly beloved brother, Dr. Jas. F. Graves, who departed this life July 4th, 1905, be it resolved that in his death we have suffered an almost irreparable loss.

In a professional way he was a man highly unselfish in ministering to the wants of the poor and distressed.

As a man, big hearted, sympathetic, loyal and sincere he was ever ready to take his fellowman, by the hand and help him overcome the trials that beset him, that he might become a better and a more useful man.

There are many who shed the silent tear of sorrow because of the loss of their friend, their physician and the sterling worth of the man justly merited these tears.

As a husband—as a father, affectionate, kind, indulgent. Only God in his infinite love and tender care can come into the family circle and take up the broken thread.

A consistent christian man, fond of the church in all departments of its work, in regular attendance upon its meetings unless hindered by professional duties or failing health his loss will be great indeed.

Since he was fifteen years of age his lot had been cast with God's people and for a number of years he had been a deacon of the Baptist church.

His wise advice, his brotherly admonition and his unflinching zeal will be greatly missed in the councils of his church.

He was loved by everybody. No one stops to question that there will be many jewels in his crown.

Resolved that the First Baptist church of Montgomery City through its committee of its Deacons express its deep sympathy with his wife, sons, daughters and relatives in the hour of their sorrow.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family and be spread upon our church records and sent to the Montgomery Standard, The Montgomery Tribune, The Central Baptist and the Word and Way for publication.

A. C. HUDSON,
JOHN COCKRELL,
C. B. FAULKNER,

State School Notes.

Nearly all county boards of education have selected books for the schools under their respective jurisdictions and have, in the main, done well. Perhaps not more than one-third of the books have been changed and they have been those that needed changing most.

As a result of changes in text books recently made by the county boards of education, it is expected that there will be great improvement in the teaching of grammar and history in the schools. The people will also welcome the natural slant in penmanship as a substitute for the vertical.

State Supt. Carrington is distributing to the counties copies of the school laws passed by the recent legislature. He is also sending out "Synopsis of the Compulsory Attendance Law" to be posted in each district ten days before school opens. District clerks may expect the county school commissioner to supply them with these required notices.

The State Library Board recently at a meeting in Kansas City revised the list of library books, from which school districts must select their books. Every rural school district, under the requirements of the law, should spend each year from five to twenty dollars for library and supplementary books. The district can not make a better investment. The State Superintendent has supplied county superintendents and commissioners with copies of the revised list.

Last Wednesday morning several wagon loads—about forty people—left here for a two days' outing on Loutre, fishing. The fishing was not good so they broke up camp early Thursday morning, but not before several members of the party had become suddenly very ill and it was thought for a while the fishing party would be turned into a funeral cortege. We take the following account of the affair from a St. Louis paper which had a reporter on the ground "As the aftermath of luncheon in the woods five members of a picnic party which left here Wednesday morning for a few days outing have been dangerously ill. Ptomaine poisoning is supposed to have resulted from lemonade mixed in a galvanized iron bucket. The members of the party who were taken ill were: Carson Proffit, Frank Carr, Miss Mae Taylor, Mrs. Horace Sabourin and Mrs. Chas. Carr."—Jonesburg Journal.
